Features

3

For its own sake: lifelong learning and education policy

by Louise Watson

In a time of rapid technological change, we should all become lifelong learners. But what is lifelong learning, and who implements it?

7

Metaphors of motion: pathways and Adult Community Education

by Allie Clemans

Pathways within and beyond Adult Community Education are not rigid. Programs and learners frequently cross the social and academic boundaries as the need suits.

12

Brave new words: changing lifeworlds for teachers in adult education

by Jennifer Angwin

The past decade has introduced many changes for literacy teachers—a major one being casualisation of the workforce—but the future is not entirely grim.

15

Victorian school leavers: pathways and outcomes

by Richard Curtain

Young people follow a variety of paths after leaving school, and viable employment must be the destination.

19

Finding the pathways: education delivery in the juvenile justice system

by Sally Pardew

In this confronting and challenging environment, there is more to the job than teaching the three Rs.

22

Searching for signs: the development of a learning disabilities screening tool

by Judy Geiger-Jennings

The story of a persistent and dedicated search for an accurate way to detect learning disabilities in adult literacy students.

Regulars

26

Foreign Correspondence

The Association for Non-Traditional Education in the Philippines, an independent non-profit organisation, is fighting illiteracy on many fronts.

29

Open Forum

Ian Harris reflects on Victoria's corrections system, Jill Sanguinetti outlines recent research from ALNARC and Michael Pegg calls for a united front in ACE.

33

Policy Update

Who is responsible when young people move on from secondary education? Ben Pollard shows how one Melbourne municipality decided to lead a community effort.

36

Beside the Whiteboard
